

17 CHANDRA PATH | LUXURY HOTEL-INSPIRED DESIGN BRIEF

Companion to drawings BF, GF, FF, SF and TF-PP-01 (revision R4, 16-09-2026). Items marked 'drawn' are on the sheets; the rest are specification.

Sources for the hotel benchmarks: Aman villa standards (large tubs, twin vanities, dressing areas, outdoor showers, sunken baths, private courtyard gardens) and Bulgari Hotel Milano suites (separate bedroom with walk-in closet, bath with tub and shower).

ARRIVAL, PORCH AND ENTRANCE

- ? Porte-cochere feel at the porch: a slatted timber or fin canopy over the drop-off zone in front of the verandah, with recessed step lights along the edge.
- ? Sunken garden court at the north-east corner of the porch (the existing basement light well), planted with gravel, a small ornamental tree and boulders, and lit at night. The external basement stair runs inside it (drawn on BF-PP-01 and GF-PP-01).
- ? Entrance foyer treated as a hotel lobby: stone floor, a single feature pendant, console with a mirror, concealed shoe storage in the vestibule, and a 3-scene lighting preset at the door (arrive, evening, night).
- ? Vastu: the arrival is on the north, which is favourable. A shallow water bowl in the sunken court adds water in the north-east, which is auspicious.

GREAT ROOM AND DINING

- ? Layered lighting: cove uplight, low-glare downlights over the dining table, and a dimmable feature pendant. All on scenes.
- ? Motorised sheer and blackout blinds on the garden-facing glazing with wall keypads and app control.
- ? Concealed AV: in-ceiling speakers, a hidden projector or a framed TV that reads as art when off.
- ? Pergola lounge in the west garden over the architect's outdoor seating (drawn on GF-PP-01): slatted timber roof, low deep sofa, round stone coffee table, as in the reference courtyard image.

KITCHEN (south-east room)

- ? Chef's kitchen with a 6 ft x 3 ft breakfast island and two stools (drawn). No hob or sink on the island, which keeps the Vastu centre of the room clear.
- ? Hob on the east wall so the cook faces east, sink in the north-east corner, fridge in the south-west corner (drawn). Chimney over the hob; the east window is above the counter.
- ? Hotel-grade fittings: quartz or stone counters with a matching splashback, integrated appliances behind panels, a built-in coffee station and wine cooler, drawer lighting, and a pantry run of tall units on the west wall.
- ? Herb court outside the east window (drawn): a small gravel court with planters so the kitchen looks onto green.

MASTER SUITE: BEDROOM, DRESSING, BATHROOM

- ? Suite sequence as in Aman and Bulgari suites: bedroom, then a separate dressing room, then the bathroom, with the bathroom opening to a private outdoor court.
- ? Bedroom (16'-5" x 10'-6"): bed with its head on the south wall, which is the top Vastu direction and a solid wall. Bedside tables both sides with master controls for lights, blinds and the do-not-disturb light at the door. Lounge chair and side table, writing desk under the north window, low TV console (drawn).
- ? Wall-to-wall upholstered headboard, sheer plus blackout motorised curtains, dimmable bedside reading lights, underfloor cooling or a quiet ducted AC with no visible grilles, and acoustic door seals.
- ? Dressing room (8'-0" x 10'-4"): wardrobe run on the south wall, a second run against the partition, a dressing table with a lit mirror on the east wall, and a full-height sliding glass door into the private garden court (drawn). Luggage bench, safe and a minibar/pantry cabinet inside the dressing.
- ? Private garden court (east side yard, about 5'-9" x 13'): walled gravel court with boulders and a small tree, seen from the bed through the glass door, as in the reference bedroom image. Vastu: north-east court kept open, light and planted; no storage there.
- ? Bathroom (existing 10'-3" x 5'-3", position unchanged): wet zone at the east end behind a fixed glass screen (drawn), with a ceiling rain head plus hand shower, a built-in stone or microcement bath under the rain head if a tub is wanted, wall-hung WC facing north, and a monolithic stone vanity with a backlit mirror. Heated towel rail, floor drain, and non-slip stone floor.
- ? Bath court: the bathroom's east window becomes full-height fixed glazing onto a small walled court with an outdoor rain shower on the boundary wall (drawn), giving the open-to-sky shower from the reference images without touching the structure above.
- ? Materials palette from the references: board-formed concrete or lime-plaster walls, ribbed or fluted tiles, warm timber, brushed brass or bronze fittings, and honed natural stone.

BASEMENT (BF-PP-01)

- ? Lounge and bar on the east half beside the windows: L-shaped bar with three stools, wine display wall, deep sofas and a round table. This is the social room and the daylight comes through the light-well windows.
- ? Home theater on the west half: fully enclosed acoustic partition on the existing column line, screen on the south wall, two rows of four recliners, tiered floor if height allows (ceiling is 8'-6"), fabric-wrapped walls and blackout.
- ? Gym with an attached shower and WC (hotel wellness style), and a store / AV rack room in the old stairwell, which is floored over at ground level.
- ? Entry by the external stair in the sunken court through a new glazed door in the existing north window opening. The existing lintel stays; only the sill masonry comes out.
- ? Vastu: basement under the east / north-east half is acceptable; dark and heavy uses (theater, store) are on the west and north-west; the north-east light well stays open and planted.

WHOLE-HOUSE SYSTEMS

- ? Lighting control with scenes in every room, warm-dim LEDs (2200K to 3000K), and night-path lighting from the bed to the bathroom.
- ? Automation for blinds, lighting, AC and audio from bedside keypads and phones. Door sensors for the do-not-disturb / make-up-room indicators if staff service the rooms.
- ? Water: pressure-boosted hot water with recirculation so rain showers run hot immediately; water softening; outdoor showers on the same loop.
- ? Acoustics: solid-core doors with drop seals on the bedroom, bathroom and theater; acoustic underlay on the first floor over the bedroom.
- ? Structure: none of the above touches the stone and brick piers marked 1 to 8. New work is partitions, joinery, glazing in existing openings, and the external stair in the existing light well.

COURTYARD-01 AND THE CENTRAL VOID

- ? Courtyard-01 (5'-7" x 9'-1") sits in the old stairwell shaft beside the entrance foyer and is open to sky through the first, second and terrace floors. No new slab is cut: the shaft already exists. A single tree stands in a 3 ft deep waterproofed planter over the basement store, with gravel, a bench and uplighting.
- ? Each upper floor keeps a 5'-6" walkway on the east side of the void with a frameless glass balustrade; on the second floor this walkway is the family picture gallery, lit by daylight from the void.
- ? Vastu: the void is just north of the centre of the house. An open, planted, light centre-north is favourable, and the tree is kept small and single-stemmed.

FIRST FLOOR (FF-PP-01)

- ? Three bedrooms: the master suite stays in the south-west (the Vastu master position), Bedroom-01 stays in the south-east with the park view, and Bedroom-03 with its own toilet is new in the north wing over the porch.
- ? Master suite upgraded to a hotel suite: the former west terrace is enclosed as an 8'-3" x 10'-5" walk-in closet with wardrobe runs on both long walls and a central island, entered from the bedroom and connecting straight into the bathroom. The small south-west terrace stays as the private terrace.
- ? The large north-east room becomes the study and memento room (17' x 13'-10"): desk facing the east bay for video calls with the garden behind, memento shelving, a two-seat sofa, and a book wall. The puja room (5'-7" x 4'-8") is carved from its north-east corner with the altar on the east wall, which is the ideal Vastu position for both uses.
- ? North-east garden terrace (6'-9" x 12'-5") at the east end of the new wing, planted and open, reached from the study and from Bedroom-03. This keeps the north-east light and low as Vastu asks.

SECOND FLOOR (SF-PP-01)

- ? The south-east toilet, walk-in closet and Bedroom-02 are removed. The whole south and east area becomes one semi-open lounge with a bar, and a view verandah at the south-east where the best view is. Existing structural wall lines stay as piers with wide lintel openings.
- ? Bedroom-02 and its toilet move to the north wing over the porch, with the same north-east garden terrace as the floor below. The master suite on this floor is unchanged.
- ? Family gallery along the courtyard void; luggage room kept as a store.

TERRACE FLOOR (TF-PP-01)

- ? Full roof terrace with a 3'-6" parapet, the courtyard void railed as a skylight opening, solar array along the south parapet, water tanks and plant in the south-west, pergola sky lounge on the east and a bar at the south-east. The north-east is kept open and low.

? Full roof terrace with a 3'-6" parapet, the courtyard void railed as a skylight opening, solar array along the south parapet, water tanks and plant in the south-west, pergola sky lounge on the east and a bar at the south-east. The north-east is kept open and low.

? Staff room (7' x 7') with WC and a screened clothes-drying yard beside the stair and lift mummy in the north-west, which is the Vastu position for staff quarters and services.

EAST SERVICE WING AND THE PARK SIDE

? The east boundary wall is to be rebuilt straight and parallel to the house at the widest existing offset, which leaves a 4'-6" strip. If the survey allows the wall at the narrower south-end line instead, the strip becomes 7' and every room below grows accordingly.

? The strip is a single-storey service wing running the full east side: staff toilet, utility with washing machine and sink (door cut below the existing kitchen window), a small planted bath court with the outdoor shower, a store, and a green court with planters and a small tree outside the dressing room's glass door.

? Its roof is at 7'-6" with a continuous planter parapet, so the kitchen, bathroom and dressing look at greenery towards the park side rather than at a wall.

? Concealed event gate in the east boundary wall along the porch: flush wall-finished panels on concealed pivots so the wall reads as solid from outside and opens for events.

VASTU VERDICTS ON THE REQUESTS

? Bedroom in the north-east on the first floor: not aligned. Vastu keeps the north-east open; the north-east room is used as study and puja instead, and the third bedroom is in the north, which is acceptable.

? Master bedroom in the south-east for the view: not aligned. The south-east is the fire corner and is kept for the kitchen below and Bedroom-01 above; the master stays in the south-west.

? Second floor bedroom and toilet in the north: aligned, with the toilet on the west side of the bedroom.

? Puja in the north-east: aligned, placed on the first floor where the north-east corner is a quiet room; on the ground floor that corner is the bedroom dressing, which is not suitable.

? Basement under the east half, sunken court in the north-east, central courtyard north of centre, staff quarters and water tanks: all aligned.
